It is with great satisfaction that the Townsman prints the list of patronesses for the Harvest Ball; satisfaction because the list shows how united are the women of Andover to promote a good cause. The Guild may not make a strong appeal to all men, for men are prone to see the results of any enterprise. The women, with a more idealistic nature, see ahead the increasing benefit which the Guild will accomplish for the boys and girls of Andover, and therefore stand together to help. The Harvest Ball gives a chance to help our youngsters and to get together as a united Andover and to have a pleasant evening. Let us all go and swell the coffers of the Guild.

A THRILLING RIDE.

The Piano Run a Frenchman Gave a Locomotive Engineer.

"I was loitering around the streets last night," said Jim Nelson, one of the old locomotive engineers running into New Orleans. "As I had nothing to do I dropped into a concert and heard a sleek looking Frenchman play a piano in a way that made me feel all over in spots. As soon as he sat down on the stool I knew by the way he handled himself that he understood the machine he was running. He tapped the keys away up one end, just as if they were gauges and he wanted to see if he had water enough. Then he looked up as if he wanted to know how much steam he was carrying, and the next moment he pulled open the throttle and sailed on to the main line as if he was half an hour late. You could hear his thunder over culverts and bridges and getting faster and faster, until the fellow rocked about in his seat like a cradle. Somehow I thought it was old 36 pulling a passenger train and getting out of the way of a special. The fellow worked the keys on the middle division like lightning, and then he flew along the north end of the line until the drivers went around like a buzz saw and I got excited. About the time I was fixing to tell him to cut her off a little he kicked the dampers under the machine wide open, pulled the throttle away back in the tender, and how he did run! I couldn't stand it any longer, and yelled to him that he was pounding in the left side, and if he wasn't careful he'd drop his ash pan. But he didn't hear. No one heard me. Everything was flying and whizzing. Telegraph poles on the side of the track looked like a row of cornstalks, and trees appeared to be a mudbank, and all the time the exhaust of the old machine sounded like the hum of a bumblebee. I tried to yell out, but my tongue wouldn't move. He went around the curves like a bullet, slipped an eccentric, blew out his soft plug—went down grades fifty feet to the mile and not a controlling brake set. She went by the meeting point at a mile and a half a minute, and calling for more steam. My hair stood up straight, because I knew the game was up. Sure enough, dead ahead of us was the headlight of a special. In a daze I heard the crash as they struck, and I saw cars shivered into atoms, people smashed and mangled and bleeding and gasping for water. I heard another crash as the French professor struck the deep keys away down on the lower end of the southern division, and then I came to my senses. There he was at a dead standstill, with the door of the firebox of the machine open, wiping the perspiration off his face and bowing to the people before him. If I live to be a thousand years old I'll never forget the ride that Frenchman gave me on a piano."—Life.

Heat.

Little things like bacilli will live in a temperature of above 211 degrees F. Experimental observations of stokers have shown that man is a cousin to the salamander. Dante made six fiery circles of hell and felt constrained to resort to ice for the seventh and last condemnation of souls. Heat, in other words, is a relative term. Heat is beneficent if you like things hot. It depends on the point of view. Heat is supposed to be enervating. The hookworm is engendered by it. But, then, a race horse will go much faster on a hot day than a cool one. The fiercest rays of the sun appear to lubricate the joints. There are various kinds of heat, such as just common, everyday heat, prickly heat and the heat of debate, etc.—Kansas City Times.

A Spartan Father.

Recently a first year high school pupil handed her history teacher what she evidently considered an exhaustive and final study of Lacedaemonian customs. In it she stated that one Spartan habit of strengthening youth was to compel the boys to sleep always on beds and thistles.

The incident reminds one of a story that is told of one of the Camerons of Lochiel.

The chief, when bivouacking with his son in the snow, noticed that the lad had rolled up a snowball to make a pillow. He thereupon rose and kicked it away, saying sternly, "No effeminacy, boy!"—Youth's Companion.

THE STEEPLE JACK.

He Must Conquer Many Difficulties in His Dangerous Work.

The successful steeple jack must possess determination, perseverance and ingenuity. He must solve many a practical problem in hoisting great bodies aloft. He must know how to fasten a hook over the summit of a skyscraper chimney. He must have the nerve to paint a steeple that aways like a pendulum at the slender top. He must be able to tear down, build up, gild, paint, place electric wires and do many another task that would be difficult enough on the solid earth.

There are many ways of getting up on a steeple, and when all others fail the man will tie a rope around it and then, with a coil on his back, walk round and round it until the entire steeple is covered with rope, and in such case he has probably been round it fully 300 times.

But a steeple is not the most difficult height to climb. Straight, tall chimneys are the hardest of all. There a man has to work with might and main to lift himself inch by inch from the ground to the top. Sometimes the top is 300 feet high. When it is reached a hook is placed over the edge, a pulley is made fast, the swinging chair is hauled up and work begins.

When the chair is near the top it is easier to work, because the ropes are short, but when they lengthen as the ground is approached there is a tendency to swing, and the wind gives impetus.

The steeple jack's safety depends upon the hook, and until he has raised himself almost to the top it is impossible for him to see whether or not the hook has been properly adjusted. More than once a steeple climber has seen when within ten feet of the top that corrosion of the iron and the collection of soot have so thickened the wall that the hook is merely balancing on the top, so that the slightest pull in the wrong direction would drag it off. Again, the bricks are often loose at the top, and the hook is likely to tear them away.

One of the natural difficulties to conquer is the swaying of all high steeples and chimneys. In a gale a steeple point will sway a foot and a half. Usually it sways from seven to nine inches. Painting it means reaching for a spot on the right side, and finding it on the left, and when making a dive for it on the left, to see it away back to the right. Yet in spite of the constant danger a born steeple jack exists in his work and is at home, like the ironworker on the skyscraper, only when high above the world. He can stand triumphantly at any height, if he can have two and one-half square inches to bear his weight.—Harper's Weekly.

MERCIFUL CAESAR.

A Story of the Great Roman and a Band of Pirates.

Caesar traveled with the retinue of a man of rank, and on his way to Rhodes he fell in with an adventure which may be something more than legend. When he was crossing the Aegean, his vessel is said to have been taken by pirates. They carried him to Pharmacusa, an island off the Carian coast, which was then in their possession, and there he was detained for six weeks with three of his attendants, while the rest of his servants were sent to the nearest Roman station to raise his ransom.

The pirates treated him with politeness. He joined in their sports, played games with them, looked into their habits and amused himself with them as well as he could, frankly telling them at the same time that they would be hanged.

The ransom, a very large one, about $10,000, was brought and paid, Caesar was set upon the mainland, near Miletus, where, without a moment's delay, he collected some armed vessels, returned to the island, seized the whole crew while they were dividing their plunder and took them away to Pergamus, the seat of government in the Asiatic province, where they were convicted and crucified. Clemency was not a Roman characteristic. It was therefore noted with some surprise that Caesar interceded to mitigate the severity of the punishment. The poor wretches were strangled before they were stretched on the crosses and were spared the prolongation of their torture.—James Anthony Froude.

DESCENDED IN WILDERNESS

Balloonists Had Hoped to Reach Coast of Labrador

POST AND HAWLEY ARE SAFE

Establish a World's Record For Sustained Flight by Traveling 1350 Miles—Reach Civilization After Week's Battle Through Wilds of Northern Quebec—Both in Good Health and on Way to New York

Quebec, Oct. 27.—Landing in the wilderness about 250 miles north of Quebec on Oct. 19, with their balloon, America II, Messrs. Hawley and Post, the last of the ten crews which started from St. Louis last week Monday in the international balloon competition for the James Gordon Bennett cup, reached civilization after just one week's battle through the wilds of northern Quebec.

They have established a new world's record for continued flight, 1350 miles. Hawley and Post reached St. Ambroise via forest, lake and stream, and from this small village the glad tidings of the safety of the two men for whom searching parties are at present scouring all of the backwoods of Canada was first given the outside world.

Augustus Post sent the following message:

"We had a beautiful trip. We had hopes that we would be able to continue the trip until we struck the Labrador coast."

"Unfortunately, about 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, the 19th, a storm came up and it became necessary to make a landing. We picked out a mountain and came down upon it. As it was a considerable distance from any settlement, we decided to pass the night in the basket of the balloon."

The men left St. Ambroise for Chicoutimi at 4:30 p. m. yesterday by vehicle and will likely come to Quebec and return to New York by way of Montreal.

Both are reported safe and sound and in good health. St. Ambroise, where the men first reported, is forty miles north of Chicoutimi, while Chicoutimi is 227 miles from Quebec by rail.

Quebec has been much interested in the whereabouts of Hawley and Post, and trappers and guides from the northern part of the province have been hurrying to the city for the past two days to join searching parties which were being organized here to look for the missing men.

Made World's Record

New York, Oct. 27.—Alvin R. Hawley and Augustus Post have established a new world's record for sustained flight. They traveled approximately 1350 miles. All the other balloons had been previously reported.

Two messages from Hawley and Post were received in New York last night. One was to William Hawley, brother of the aeronaut, the other to Samuel F. Perkins, pilot of the balloon Dusseldorf II, which until last night had been considered the winner.

The message to Hawley said: "Landed in wilderness week ago, 50 miles north of Chicoutimi. Both well."

The Perkins message ran: "Landed Peribonka river, north Lake Chlogon, 19th. All well. Returning."

With receipt of the news there ended a search which had come to be regarded by many as almost hopeless and in which the governments of this country and Canada were indirectly participating.

In addition to emissaries sent by the Aero Club of St. Louis, the Aero Club of America and by William Hawley, the United States revenue cutter service, the signal corps of the army, the Hudson Bay company and other agents were conducting the search, scouring the great lakes and making preparations for entering the almost impenetrable Canadian forests.

Clifford B. Harmon had offered $1000 to anyone finding Hawley and Post, dead or alive, and this sum had been increased last night by subscription to more than $7000.

At the international aviation meet at Belmont park, nearly $2000 was subscribed among the aviators yesterday afternoon.

PLOT TO RU N FRANCE

Briand Says He Has Proof of Conspiracy That Failed

Paris, Oct. 27.—On the reassembling of the chamber of deputies after the government had been attacked by the Socialists, Premier Briand created something like a sensation by declaring that he had proof, through confessions of the leaders of the recent railroad strike, that there was a deliberate plot to ruin France by violence, anarchy and civil war.

In concluding his address the premier said that the cabinet was studying a plan to prevent a repetition of such strikes while at the same time guarding the legitimate rights of wage earners.

President Fallieres and the members of the cabinet are being guarded constantly as the result of the appearance of the anarchistic circular condemning the ministers to death because of the conviction in the courts of the militant members among the railway strikers.

It is given out here that King Chulalongkorn's death was due to uraemic poisoning. For years the late king was a sufferer from nephritis. Later uraemia developed, and on Saturday last the king's condition was such that the attending specialist gave up all hope of saving his life. He died a few hours later.

HUB NEGRO CHOSEN FOR HIGH POSITION

Lewis to Be Assistant United States Attorney General

Washington, Oct. 27.—Unusual recognition is to be given the negro race by President Taft, through the appointment of William H. Lewis of Boston as an assistant attorney general of the United States. The appointment has been agreed upon by the president and Attorney General Wickersham.

Mr. Lewis is at present an assistant to the United States district attorney at Boston, and is a graduate of Amherst and Harvard. He was a famous athlete.

DOGS ATTEND WEDDING

Mrs. Bowen Has Pet Japanese Spaniels Act as Her "Bridesmaids"

New York, Oct. 25.—Just the minute Rev. E. L. Copefield started the wedding service making Mrs. Mary S. Bowen, a wealthy San Francisco society woman, and Percy W. Evans, head of a Seattle shipping concern, man and wife, the three bridesmaids began to frisk and caper about. It took all the soothing efforts of the best man and matron of honor to keep them fairly quiet so that the ceremony could proceed.

The wedding was held at the home of Arthur Delroy. The bridesmaids wore gorgeously embroidered gowns with tiny lace. Their liveliness was due to the fact that they are young Japanese spaniels and were simply glad to see their mistress, who held them by a leash.

After the ceremony the dog bridesmaids were given a dog dinner, at which Lillian Russell's toy spaniel was also a guest.

GIRL FREE IN CRIPPEN CASE

Not an Accomplice to Doctor
in Murder of His Wife

NO WITNESSES FOR DEFENSE

Jury Returns Verdict of Acquittal

Twenty-Two Minutes After Retiring

—Ethel Leneve Long Under Influence of Murderer, According to Her

Counsel—London Editor is Fined

$1000 For Contempt of Court

London, Oct. 26.—Ethel Leneve was acquitted by a jury in New Bailey on the charge of being an accomplice to Dr. H. H. Crippen in the murder of Mrs. Crippen, Belle Elmore, the American variety actress.

It was for love of Miss Leneve that Crippen, now under death sentence, murdered his wife. The crown's counsel, Richard Muir, could not show that Miss Leneve had any knowledge of either the American's intention or the crime itself. There were no witnesses called by the defense.

As Miss Leneve sat in the prisoner's dock she was a pathetic figure. In replying to the formal charge of being an accessory after the fact to the murder of Belle Elmore, the girl pleaded "not guilty" in a voice that was scarcely audible.

Miss Leneve's counsel, Frederick E. Smith, asked the jury to bear in mind that his client had been under the influence of Crippen, one of the most dangerous criminals of recent years, since she was 16 years of age. This, he asserted, accounted for her flight in the doctor's company.

Lord Chief Justice Alverstone, in summing up for the jury, said that he saw no reason why Crippen should have told Miss Leneve a story different from that which he told to others.

The illness of the accused on the night of her interview with Mrs. Jackson was not, the prosecution said, an ordinary illness, but a condition of horror, the explanation of which was the knowledge that had come to her that Crippen had murdered his wife.

According to the prosecution, Miss Leneve's relation to the crime as an accessory began very soon after the death of Mrs. Crippen. In the case made out against the doctor Mrs. Crippen, or Belle Elmore, as she was known on the stage, was murdered on the morning of Feb. 1, and her dismembered body buried in the cellar of the Crippen home at 39 Hilldrop Crescent on that day. Miss Leneve slept in the Crippen home on the night of the day following.

Miss Leneve was an object for keen scrutiny on the part of the women, who composed the majority of the spectators. She is of medium build, light brown hair, gray eyes and excellent teeth. Her face is pretty and she is trim. She wears good clothes becomingly and, naturally buoyant and affable, she is a prepossessing woman.

The trial lasted but a few hours, the prosecution closing its case before lunch. Lord Chief Justice Alverstone delivered his charge to the jury and they retired, returning in twenty-two minutes with a verdict of acquittal.

The news editor of the London Chronicle was fined $1000 and costs yesterday for publishing an alleged confession of Dr. Crippen shortly after Crippen's arrest by Inspector Dew in Canada. The editor was committed to jail pending the payment of the fine.

The alleged confession was contained in a dispatch sent to London from Montreal. Shortly after its publication contempt of court proceedings were instituted against the paper by the state.

London, Oct. 24.—Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, the American practitioner and medical agent, was found guilty of the murder of his wife, the American actress, Belle Elmore, and sentenced to death.

Lord Chief Justice Alverstone, who presided at the trial, sentenced Crippen to be hanged on Nov. 15.

TACK IN NEGRO'S SKULL

Queer Cure For Blindness Devised by an Atlanta "Doctor"

Atlanta, Oct. 26.—William Williams, a negro, is in jail here, charged with swindling, on account of the peculiar cure for blindness which he devised.

His remedy consisted in driving a tack into the back portion of a blind negro's skull and charging $2.50 for the operation.

Robert Ward, the victim, told the police court judge that the tack process was not very painful, but that Williams' manner of taking the $2.50 "hurt considerable."

MACKMEN ARE CHAMPIONS

Athletics' Youth Prevails Over Age

and Experience of Cubs

Chicago, Oct. 24.—From the lofty flagpole that sways above the battle-ground at Shibe park a new silk pennant will flutter next year, and above the faded device of the "White Elephants," a swelling banner will shortly proclaim the Mackmen "champions of the world."

For yesterday afternoon the once unconquerable Cubs went down to their fourth defeat and Connie Mack and his splendid young team achieved their long cherished ambition.

This last contest, the deciding one in the struggle for the title, seems to have silenced for good and all the comparisons which have always rated the American league organization as inferior. The Athletics have out-hit the Cubs practically two to one, they have outfielded their rivals as well, and the smoothness of their play, never startling in individual brilliancy, has made the weak attempts of the Cubs' fabled "machine work" look cheap by contrast.

BARNEY OLDFIELD

WINS $5000 RACE

Jack Johnson's Master When

It Comes to Automobiles

New York, Oct. 26.—Barney Oldfield defeated Jack Johnson by half a mile in the first of their five-mile races at Sheephead Bay race track.

Oldfield also won the second heat and the race.

Three thousand people were lined up around the course when the two drivers came on the track, Oldfield in his Knox racer and the negro in a Thomas flyer. Johnson handled his car well, but was out-classed and out-jockeyed by Oldfield, who demonstrated his title to being the cleverest and most daring speed merchant in the world.

The race was for $5000 to the winner of two out of three five-mile heats.

HAS ABNORMAL APPETITE

Means by Which Escaped Lunatic Is Identified and Caught

Brunswick, Me., Oct. 27.—A man's voracious appetite led to his identification here when all else failed, even his own memory. As a result, R. C. Day, who escaped from the McLean insane hospital on Sept. 8, was returned to that institution.

Reading of the remarkable appetite of a man who had been found living a wild life in the woods near here, officials of the McLean hospital believed they had located Day, who had exhibited abnormal gastronomic proclivities during his two years' stay at the hospital. Two attendants of the institution were sent here and made the identification.

Lightning Sets Church Afire—Saco, Me., Oct. 26.—A terrific electrical storm swept over Saco last night, lightning striking the steeple of the School street Methodist Episcopal church and setting fire to it and also sending a bolt into the home of Fred C. LIGHTED CANDLE IS UPSET

Drapery of Casket Instantly Wrapped

in Flames Which Spread to In-

Drive Out Occupants—Panic-Stricken

People Unable to Do Anything to

Save Coffin or Its Contents

Boston, Oct. 27.—When a young woman bent over to kiss the forehead of her dead friend, Miss Letetesia Di Napoli, at the funeral on the second floor of 6 Hull street, North End, a candle was upset, the drapery of the casket caught fire in a flash, consternation reigned among the mourners inside and outside the house, and before the flames could be controlled, the casket and its contents had been reduced to ashes.

The dead young woman was 19 years old. She was well known in the North End. In the room when the friends were taking their farewells were about a dozen men and women. In the street in carriages were probably a hundred friends, waiting to accompany the procession to the cemetery.

When the candle fell and ignited the drapery of the casket there was a cry of fright from those in the room. They were so astounded that for a time no one could act. When they tried to put out the blaze the flames had gained great headway.

The flames wrapped about the coffin, leaped at the inflammable material in the room and forced the occupants out for their lives.

Occupants of the house, which is four stories in height, ran in a panic into the street. They communicated the startling news that the dead girl was being burned in her coffin. Men and women stood about, helpless, awed to inaction.

The excitement spread in this populous section of the city, and an immense crowd gathered about the building. Patrolmen Walsh and Flynn were called. A fire alarm was rung and soon the firemen clattered up.

When the flames had been drowned out it was found that the casket was but a pile of ashes. An undertaker carefully gathered up what remained and it was prepared for burial.

The young woman died Tuesday after a prolonged illness. The casket was to have been taken to the Sacred Heart church, North square, where a service was to have been held, previous to interment.

UPRISING IN MINDANAO

Troops Are Being Rushed to Hotbed of Philippine Insurgency

Manila, P. I., Oct. 27.—All available United States soldiers have been ordered to southwestern Mindanao, where two bands of Manobos tribesmen are in revolt on the west coast of Davao. A number of planters, including Earl Gerr, an American, have been killed. Brigadier General Pershing has left to command the reinforcement.

Mindanao is the southernmost of the Philippine islands. Davao forms the southern division. Zamboanga, the military headquarters, is 200 miles by sea from the scene of the outlaws.

Mindanao has been the hotbed of insurgency ever since the islands proclaimed allegiance to the United States.

JOHNSTONE SETS NEW MARK

Mounts 7303 Feet in the Air and Has Encounter With Snowstorm

New York, Oct. 26.—The American altitude record that J. A. Drexel brought down out of the clouds in his Blériot monoplane was snatched from his grasp by Ralph Johnstone in a headless Wright climber at Belmont Park.

Drexel reached 7105 Tuesday, but Johnstone topped him yesterday by 198 feet with a new mark of 7303 feet. He came down chilled to the bone and his goggles rimmed with frost.

For half an hour he had battled with a snowstorm above the clouds, seeking still higher levels. The undemonstrative Wilbur Wright danced with joy when he glanced at the barograph.

Threats of Anarchists

Paris, Oct. 26.—President Fallieres and the members of the cabinet are being guarded constantly as the result of the appearance of an anarchistic circular condemning the ministers to death because of the conviction in the courts of the militant members among the railway strikers.

Yale's High Cost of Living

New Haven, Oct. 24.—It costs a Yale man at least $1000 a year on an average to go through the university. A canvass shows that of last year's freshman class 114 spent an average of $1033 each, 117 sophomores $1100 and 119 juniors $1133.

OLD-FASHIONED CEREMONY

Quaker Rites Observed at Wedding of a Young Couple

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 27.—An old-fashioned Quaker wedding ceremony, now seldom used, in which the minister has no other duties than to read from the Scriptures after the bride and bridegroom have married themselves, was used at the marriage last night of Miss Marion G. Smith to Timothy E. Garland.

The ceremony was performed at the Friends' chapel in the presence of 260 guests. The bride and groom both live in Swampscott, where they will make their home after their wedding trip.

The ceremony used consisted of spoken pledges by the young couple, no others speaking until after they had formally pronounced themselves man and wife. Then four witnesses signed the register and Rev. George G. Williams, pastor of the church, read from the Scriptures.

STATE HOUSE REDEDICATION

New Hampshire Has Spent $400,000 in Making Repairs

Concord, N. H., Oct. 26.—The remodelled state house with its recent $400,000 addition was rededicated here. Governor Quinn by his councillors held a housewarming in their new quarters, and brief addresses in the enlarged hall of representatives were made.

The completion of the new building closes for some time the long-standing contest between this city and Manchester for the honor of being the capital city of the state.

The new building is built entirely of Concord granite, the exterior conforming to the general lines of the original state house. The chief changes in the older structure include a third story in place of the old Mansard roof, and enlargement of the Doric rotunda by the removal of stairways.

THE TARIFF AND ONE COMMUNITY IT HAS MADE

There is little doubt but that the traveling demagogues who are for the most part proclaiming the virtues of the Democratic party, while they array class against class, are succeeding in making somewhat effective the doctrines which they preach. We are inclined to think that it is of very little importance whether a man is labeled Republican or Democrat if the only significance attached to the label is to make of it a vehicle upon which he may secure preferment at the hands of the voters. From a long adherence to the Republican party, we do believe it makes a vast amount of difference whether a man stands for Republican principles or Democratic principles as they have been worked out in administration, in legislation, and in executive control, in the government of the United States.

Massachusetts stands at the forefront of all the states in the Union which have successfully carried on public affairs under the direction of the Republican party. It is of little avail for the Democratic party to lay claim to their oft-repeated statement that they have forced the Republican party to pass the progressive laws that are now a part of the state government. The minority seldom forces the majority. Undoubtedly they have stood for many things that are now law, that have not come except upon constantly reiterated insistence, but when carefully weighed and finally approved, it has been a Republican majority that is responsible for the government of the Commonwealth with very few exceptions.

A very seductive subject is offered to the traveling demagogue (and he sometimes travels far, and sometimes near) in his talk upon the high cost of living, and the effect the tariff has upon the high cost of living. The unthinking catches readily at this charge against the party in power, when he has with him at all times the daily expense account of home and personal demands, larger now than ever before. But is this quite fair? How is it possible to call to account for this condition the present Chief Executive of the Commonwealth, or those associated with him in high and low places in state government?

We believe that the tariff as passed by the last Congress will stand the test of time, and no other test given to it can prove its efficiency. That it has very little to do with the high cost of living, in the final analysis, is being effectively proven by the speeches made by Robert Luce, chairman of the recent Commission. As an economic principle, Mr. Luce has acknowledged that the necessities of life should not be taxed, but as a practical question in which the men who till the soil and who produce the necessities of life have an honest interest, there is no question about the propriety of preserving the home market to them so far as it is possible to do so commensurate with the duties placed upon other articles. This is all that has been done in the last tariff, and its operation and the operation of the tariff as a general proposition can be no better illustrated than it is here in our own section where one of the most important industries is located, and about which there is much discussion with regard to the tariff.

The city of Lawrence is the center of this community that may properly include Lawrence, Methuen, Andover and North Andover. In twenty years Lawrence has more than doubled in population, and it is reasonable to suppose that in twenty more, they will have more than trebled, with a population for the city and its surrounding towns of close to a half million people. The reason for this growth is entirely due to the textile industry, and the man does not live who can make a case in favor of the development of the textile industry on any other basis than the basis of a protective tariff. But it is not enough to suggest that looms have increased and that all kinds of machinery have been doubled and trebled in this development, as the entire case in point. With this development has been an improved condition for the people of the city of Lawrence that can be hardly appreciated by those who have not been conversant with conditions as they were twenty years ago. The old corporation boarding-house is a thing of the past; the cheap treatment given to the average operative in his home life matched the cheap wage in his pay envelope.

If there has been an increase in the high cost of living for this person, the cause is strikingly illustrated in Lawrence, where there has also been a tremendous improvement in the character of his living. Take the American Woolen Company as an illustration. Mr. Wood has built side by side with his big factory, his model tenement. He has insisted upon conditions for his working people that few well-to-do people of Lawrence knew twenty years ago. The house with modern plumbing and modern fixtures, with cheerful yard and cheerful surroundings, gives a glimpse of the character of living enjoyed by the present day operative that would be a startling eye-opener to the operative of twenty years ago. But more than this, we find not all the activity for better conditions by any means confined to the private enterprise. Close at hand are the state and municipality contributing their watchful care over health as men work and over sickness if it comes. District physicians and nurses are always at call, expensive hospitals, public and private, give their services, laws are enforced that make streets cleaner, homes sweeter, lives purer, and so on one might go telling why the taxation burden to the public increases, but telling also what the tax stands for.

Again, this does not finish the illustration. To meet these conditions and to provide for these people, has been the opportunity for the surrounding territory. A farm in any one of the three towns surrounding Lawrence is worth double the money today that it was twenty years ago. We doubt if there is a piece of property within five miles of Lawrence that will not bring double the price that it would twenty years ago, and the only reason for this increased value is the increased market afforded to the farmers of these three towns by the developed industry of the city of Lawrence. If the farmer complains of the high cost of living, let him query if ever in his existence he has had as many comforts as he is having today. If the operative complains of this high cost of living, let him query if his ancestors ever enjoyed one-half the comforts that he now enjoys in his modern tenement, in his service by city, state, and nation, in his shortened hours, in his pleasures, in his better living.

If the people have set out to rebuke the Republican administration, no argument will avail that serves to deter them from their determination. But the principles for which the dominant party now stands, should be carefully considered and fully understood before the great mass of voters who have seen prosperity come through their administration and their legislation, desert their standard. The undoubted inequalities of the present tariff may never be fully remedied. The whole scheme of legislation in the United States has been a sort of back-scratching proposition. The first step to stop this back-scratching method has been taken by the Republican party in the establishment of a Tariff Commission whose duty it shall be to scientifically consider and report upon the tariff by separate schedules. But just as truly as this proposition has been unsystematic in many ways, just as surely has the foundation of tariff legislation been sound. Protection is the keystone upon which the industries of the United States have been developed. Upon that keystone, not only has business grown, but conditions of labor have so improved that today we have a standard for our laboring people unapproached by any country in the world.

It is foolish to argue that the success of any individual or any particular set of individuals, as individuals, has any real effect upon the prosperity or the business success of the country, but it is sound argument to insist that the established standard for living in America is a necessary part of the development of the nation along lines that make the best standard of citizenship.

Water Must Go to the Farms

We have referred several times recently to one of the important problems for consideration at the March meeting in 1911, in the rebuilding of many of the public highways. While there is every reason to continue to emphasize the importance of action by the town that shall make the main thoroughfares in all sections in much better condition than they are at the present time, the last three months have made it clear that there is an even more important question than this demanding consideration.

Probably not within the memory of any living citizen has the question of water supply been so disturbing to many of the old-fashioned homesteads in Andover. This is a condition that is noted all over New England, and it is not surprising that Andover has its share of the trouble. Those of us who have the very superior service provided from Haggitt's Pond, and distributed by the Andover system, have probably given little thought to what the men on the outskirts are doing this prolonged dry spell, but if we have been careless, they have been very much disturbed, and the greatest question that can possibly come up for consideration next March will be an extension of the present service to provide for practically all the households in Andover.

We have on several previous occasions urged the importance of this development, but it is now no longer a question of theory, but a question of practical and necessary service, if we are to give to all the citizens an equal share in this public blessing provided by the public funds. In several sections of the West Parish they have been carting water for weeks. In sections of Scotland and Holt Districts they have had to do the same. Some of the fine old homesteads down there, like those of Stephen E. Abbott and George K. Dodge, which have never before known what it was to have the wells dry, have had a serious condition to confront them for many weeks, and one cannot believe that there will be the least question about positive and progressive action being taken at the next annual meeting, to relieve such situations as confront these men and many of their neighbors.

The writer has seen the Andover system developed from its beginning, and it now serves practically the entire settled portion of the town. The next movement is to the outskirts, and the response to the demands of these sections should be liberal and hearty, both from the viewpoint of common justice and the viewpoint of making the water service as large a blessing as possible.

Editorial Cinders

Next Monday night comes the first Harvest Ball. If every "patroness" goes there will be a fair attendance. If every patroness takes a friend, and that friend takes a partner, there will be a splendid success chronicled. The object is a worthy one. The people interested guarantee a good time. It only needs you and your friends to show by your presence that you are willing to help.

Congratulations to the ladies who conducted so successful a tea at the home of Mrs. E. W. Pitman in aid of the fund for the district nurse. A sum quite a little in excess of a hundred dollars, marking generous contributions from many sources, and an attendance of ladies and friends that showed a widespread interest, indicates that Andover wants a district nurse, delights in the service she is rendering, and means to keep her as one of the active agents for the good of the community.

Street Railway Accident

A street railway accident in which several persons were injured, took place Tuesday morning at Wilson's Corner, when the car leaving Salem at 9:15 and due in Lawrence at 10:45 split a switch and crashed into a trolley pole. The car was moving at a rapid rate, and when it neared the corner the brakes refused to work and the motorman lost control of the car. There were about twenty passengers aboard, but fortunately no serious injuries were sustained. Conductor Alex Champion of North Andover broke his leg in a fall. The passengers who received minor hurts were conveyed to the Lawrence hospital in the automobile of Percival Dove of Abbot street, who was passing at the time. The trolley was not badly damaged and after a short delay proceeded on its way to Lawrence.

Automobile Accident

What might have proved to be a fatal accident occurred in the square on Saturday morning when Hazel Eastwood, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Eastwood of Morton street, was struck by an automobile owned by Warren Kimball of Haverhill. The child was rendered unconscious by the blow and was carried into Lowe's drug store and a physician summoned. At first it was not known to what extent injuries had been received, but the event proved that the results will not be serious. The child was taken to her home on Morton street in Mr. Kimball's automobile.

The machine was going slowly and the accident was caused by the sudden turning of the child back into its path.

Suicide Last Saturday

Justus Bryant (colored), about forty years of age, coachman for George W. Cann, committed suicide last Saturday by blowing the top of his head off with a shotgun. The deed was done in a field on the Cann estate and the body was discovered by one of the other employees. Medical Examiner Dow of Lawrence was immediately summoned and he pronounced the death due to suicide.

Bryant was well known in town, as he has worked here for several years. He served as coachman for Prof. E. H. Williams for some time. It is thought that the man took his life in a moment of despondency. His wife, whose health is not of the best, and his two children, left town last week for Georgia, their old home, where they are to pass the winter.

The body was taken in charge by Undertaker Messer and the funeral service held on Tuesday afternoon at the undertaker's rooms on Park street. Prof. W. H. Ryder officiated. Burial was in Spring Grove cemetery.

Tuesday Night's Fire

Along with the severe electrical storm which broke Tuesday evening, came what might have proved to be a serious fire, in the house owned by T. F. Morrissey on High street. The house was struck by the lightning bolt which came about seven o'clock and which made practically everybody do a little thinking and wonder where it hit. The fire started at the very top of the mansard roof and smoldered away for fully three-quarters of an hour before it was discovered by neighbors, and the department summoned. By the time it arrived the flames had gotten a good start and looked threatening. Finally, however, the men got it under control, and after an hour's work the all-out signal sounded. The damage done was considerable, and was caused not so much by the fire as by the water. The house is occupied by the owner and his family and by James C. Hunter and family.

Carmichael Rallies

Col. James H. Carmichael of Lowell, Democratic nominee for Congress in the Fifth district, will hold noonday rallies at the Wood and Arlington mills in Lawrence and at Methuen and Andover.

Benefit Tea

The beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Pitman on Main street was generously opened on Friday afternoon, on the occasion of a benefit tea for the fund for the Andover district nurse. Over one hundred and fifty guests enjoyed Mrs. Pitman's hospitality between the hours of four and six o'clock. The reception committee, which consisted of Mrs. Joseph W. Smith, Mrs. Fredric Palmer, Mrs. Charles E. Abbott and the hostess, received in the large living-room, which had been charmingly decorated with potted plants and chrysanthemums, by J. H. Plandon. Six young lady ushers also added to the grace of the occasion. Miss Ruth Ryley of Lawrence acted as doorkeeper, while the other assistants were Misses Marion Humphries, Marion Barnard, Mildred Jenkins, Ernestine Pitman, and Helen Hanscom of Lawrence.

Another room was devoted to the sale of candy. Pounds and pounds of delicious homemade candy were quickly disposed of and the sum realized from the sale was by no means an insignificant one.

The dining-room was especially attractive in its decorations of red salvia and red geraniums, together with green foliage. No amount of trouble had been spared to make the table present the best appearance possible, and laden as it was with tea, chocolate, dainty sandwiches, fancy cookies and cakes, and candy, called forth the admiration of all present.

During the afternoon, Miss Helen Eaton, cello, and Miss Eleanor Holt, violin, furnished music.

Much patient and painstaking work was necessary to make the affair the success that it was, and this work was accomplished by Mrs. Pitman, assisted by a committee consisting of Mrs. Charles E. Abbott, Mrs. David Shaw, Mrs. Frank Grout, Mrs. William Currier, Mrs. Colver J. Stone, Miss Alice Jenkins. Besides the social success which the afternoon proved to be, there was also a highly satisfactory financial success, about one hundred and fifty dollars being cleared. Great interest was shown, as the question of a district nurse is such a vital one in Andover.

Do you believe in the Guild? Is it not worth while to make an effort to better the condition of the boys and girls of our town? Is it not more worth while to interest them and to keep them busy, than to have them unoccupied with no relaxation after their working hours, save such as the streets furnish? Is it not fair to give them some helpful pleasure? These are the motives of the Guild. If such a work appeals to your love of the youth of Andover; if you wish to help the youth of Andover, will you not buy the tickets offered and enable the Guild to broaden its labors and become of greater value to the town?

"I do not care for the Guild; the boys are noisy and profane and rough." This is what one citizen of Andover said to a member of the committee. Of course boys are noisy and rough; that's their nature. The profanity is the result of environment; you do not hear it in the Guild. Why? Because the environment is such that the boys realize profanity does not "go." Are they not more apt to realize, after the further Guild training, that profanity doesn't "go" in other circumstances? Are they not more likely to refrain from such vulgarity with increasing frequency?

Do you like to dance? If so, do you often get the chance to enjoy this pleasure with such music as the Salem Cadet Orchestra will give you? Do you usually get such excellent music at so small a cost as one dollar? Aren't you pretty sure that you will have a good time, if you go? Granting that you don't care for the Guild, that you have no interest in it or in the boys and girls of Andover; still will you not get a big return for your money?

The committee urges on you the consideration of these questions and begs your support; it wishes you to attend and to enjoy every minute; it wishes the Guild to receive the aid which it so richly merits; it will be grateful to the citizens of Andover for enthusiastic support in its double effort to aid the Guild and please all who attend the dance.

From eight to nine a band concert in the town hall for those who wish to purchase gallery tickets. These are on sale at Stacey's drug store and cost fifty cents. They will not admit to the dancing floor.

Dancing will begin at nine promptly and end at one, unless enough tickets be sold to justify the committee in extending the time.

Dance orders will be given to each person on the dancing floor on the night of the ball.

Obituary

DAVID GIBSON

David Gibson, a former resident of Abbott Village, and overseer in the Smith & Dove Manufacturing Co., passed away on Wednesday morning at the home of his daughter in Haverhill, aged eighty-four years. He was well known in this town, settling here when he first came to this country from Arbroath, Scotland. He is survived by three sons and nine daughters.

The funeral services were held today at noon in Haverhill, and interment will be in the family lot in Spring Grove cemetery.

Andover United Defeated

The Lawrence association football team defeated the Andover United football club on Saturday in one of the Lawrence, Lowell and District league series. The game was an interesting one, and close throughout, the score being 3 to 1. The summary:

Lawrence—Haigh; Turton, S. Wilde; H. Roberts, C. Adams, H. Winslow; S. Elliot, D. Roberts, J. Clark, D. Allen, J. Gilmartin.

Andover—Deyermund; Gordon, Fisher; Sprunt, Downs, Stirling; Gordon, Daid, Stark, Cairnie, Kink. Score, Lawrence 3, Andover 1. Goals, Elliott 2, Gordon. Referee, Fangburn; linesmen, Rhodes, Lawrence, McKillip, Andover. Time, 45 minutes.

The game was the best seen in Andover for a long time, free from roughness and ill feeling, both sides playing a hard and fast game. Special mention may be made of Deyermund, who appeared in goal for Andover, the first time as a keeper, and played a great game. A few more games, Bob, and they will have to wake up before they get through.

Another Delightful Course

The people of Andover will welcome the announcement that another course of entertainments is to be provided by the ladies of the November club. These entertainments will be given in the town hall this winter, similar to those of last year. The first, on December 6, will be a concert by Mr. George Harris, Jr., vocalist, a former resident of Andover, and a pupil of De Resyke's in Paris, and Miss Nina Fletcher, a well-known violinist.

The second, on January 17, is a dramatic reading of "The Shaughran," by Mr. Leland Powers, and the third, on February 7, will be two plays under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. H. Winthrop Peirce, "The Silent Voice," by Alma Tadema, and "Alice in Wonderland."

FURNISHED ROOMS to let. Apply at 43 High Street.

Review of Union Services

The three afternoon union services of this week have been most helpful, showing some of the methods of Christ in winning men, and the methods of His disciples. One man was brought by four to Christ. It does not matter how many there are to help, if you only bring them. In this work, there must be first of all, love, then faith, persistence, and resourcefulness. We need to ask God to sharpen our wits, that we may use ingenuity in winning men to Christ.

Without Christ, His disciples fished all night and caught nothing. With Him, they caught a boat-load. Christ wants us to trust Him, to launch out into the deep, and work with Him. The kingdom of God belongs to us just as much as to Him, we are joint heirs, and He wants us to be joint workers. His work cannot be done by wading in the shallows. He loves us, and He wants us to have a part in the catch. For this we must have clean nets, that have no holes, through which fish may escape.

The blessedness of Christian experience, from faith and service, through fellowship and privilege, to the deepest, truest love for Christ, was shown. By vivid word-pictures, by illustrations that truly illustrate, and stick in one's mind, the great truths and principles of Christ, and His kingdom have been plainly set forth. There has been a mighty pleading that Christ may stand first in the life, a skilful portraying of His wonderful love, His power to redeem, and to keep from sin now. Christ will, if trusted, raise up those bound down to sin, melancholy, a bad temper, profanity, and all the evils with which conspiring Satan can shackle people.

Much good has been accomplished through this series of meetings, closing Wednesday evening. Workers for Christ have been quickened to more consecrated activity; unbelieving ones have been stirred to longings for a better life; purposes for good have been strengthened in many hearts. Gratifying words of hearty appreciation to evangelist and singer were spoken at the last meeting, and it is believed that the influence of forces set in motion by these meetings will long be felt.

WEDDINGS

CHADWICK—GORDON

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Gordon on Maple avenue was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday evening at seven o'clock, when their daughter Margaret, was united in marriage to Harry Chadwick, a well-known local young man and son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Chadwick of High street.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. A. Wilson in the parlor, which was beautifully decorated with palms, evergreen and chrysanthemums. The bride and groom stood beneath an arch of maple leaves and chrysanthemums, under which a large wedding bell was suspended.

The bridal party descended the stairway and entered the parlor to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played on the violin by Wm. Scott. The single ring service was used, the bride being given away by her father. She was attended by her sister, Miss Elizabeth Gordon, as bridesmaid, and Nathaniel Chadwick, a brother of the groom, was best man. During the ceremony a quartet consisting of Misses Mary Scott and Jean Dundas, and Messrs. William Scott and George A. Christie, rendered "O Perfect Love." The ushers were Misses Mary Scott, Amy Chadwick, Jean Dundas and Bertha C. Courts.

The bride was prettily attired, her dress being of white chiffon over silk, and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid wore a dress of pink voile and carried a bouquet of bride roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held and Mr. and Mrs. Chadwick received the heartiest wishes for a successful future from the guests present. Caterer Rhodes furnished refreshments.

Shortly after nine o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Chadwick left the house amid a shower of confetti, on a wedding tour, which will be spent in New York. On their return they will reside on Maple avenue, where they will be at home after January 1.

KYDD—GOUCK

A quiet wedding was solemnized at Christ church on Wednesday afternoon, when Miss Helen Kydd, daughter of Mrs. Hugh Kydd of Abbott Village, was united in marriage to Harry Gouck of Andover. The ceremony took place at five o'clock and was performed by Rev. Frederic Palmer. Mrs. William G. West, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid, while Wendell Kydd, brother of the bride, acted as best man.

The bride was attired in her mother's wedding dress of garnet satin, worn twenty-five years ago, and she carried a large bouquet of bride roses. Her bridesmaid was dressed in green and white silk and carried white carnations.

A supper was served at the home of the bride at seven o'clock. She received many beautiful presents, among them several from abroad. After a short wedding trip they will reside at the home of the bride's parents.

MASON—RUSSELL

A wedding of interest to some of the residents of Andover is that of Miss Junia Killen Russell and Harold Francis Mason, which was celebrated at Christ church, Cambridge, this week. Miss Russell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ballister Russell of 69 Sparks street, Cambridge, and the niece of the late Governor William E. Russell. Mr. Mason, who is a member of the Harvard class of 1905, is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer B. Mason of Commonwealth avenue. He belongs to several leading clubs. The family is well known in Andover. Mortimer B. Mason was trustee of Abbot Academy in late years. All were members of the South church and resided in the place formerly owned by Samuel Downs on Main street.

Deaths

In Frye Village, Sunday, October 23, 1910, aged 72 years, Sarah E. Noyes, wife of the late Aaron Noyes.
In Andover, Saturday, October 22, aged 40 years, Justus Bryant.

Association Football

A friendly game of association football will be played on the Andover eleven representing the Andover United A. F. C., and the Beverly A. F. C., play to begin at three o'clock. The Beverly team has the reputation of being a clever combination. The United is already well known in this district, and will try out some recent arrivals from Scotland, reputed exponents of the game, so that the match is likely to be a good one. Admission ten cents.

Annual K. of C. Ball

The annual Farmers' Ball, held by Andover council, K. of C., took place in the town hall last Friday evening and proved to be a great success. The ball was well attended, many visitors from out of town being present. Excellent music was furnished by the Columbia orchestra. Many of those present were in costume and the grotesque picture presented by the combination of colors and costumes was a feature of the evening. The ball was opened with a grand march led by William Daly and his sister, Miss Mary Daly. Prizes were awarded for costumes as follows: Ladies' prizes, first, Miss Nora Hodnett, a hen; second, Miss Kittie Kyle, a bag of turnips; gentlemen's prizes, first, James Daly, a rooster; second, Joseph Carroll, a bag of potatoes. The heifer was given to E. Johnson of Reading.

McDOUGALL'S MUSINGS

Where Are We At

Roosevelt in speaking to his big Boston audience says that the mode of fixing the tariffs has been wrong and that it is time that the hog-raising and graft business practiced by both parties was stopped, and that an "independent," "permanent," "expert" commission to report from time to time to Congress is his new mode of tariff reform, agreeing with President Taft's suggestion. Mr. Roosevelt does not say in so many words, but the tenor of his remarks shows that he thoroughly believes that a tariff raises the price of the article on which an import duty is placed, and insists that the working man should get his fair share of the tariff price.

Senator Lodge says that wages are raised by tariffs, and that we do not pay a higher price on account of having a duty to pay on the merchandise taxed—so there you are.

In the editorial of the Townsman of last week we are asked to say more on this tariff business so that all sides of the question may be freely and calmly discussed. I have tried to give a fair statement of facts regarding our tariffs, as far as I could see into this unwieldy subject.

Mr. Foss says that he does not require a 45 per cent duty on his machine-making. He should know. Let us see how this 45 per cent works out. It will be 50 per cent, not 45 per cent, you will have to pay if you buy your machines in Europe. The maker there does not pay the freight. His goods are sold where they are made, not specially boxed, and landed here as they must be if we want them.

Now suppose a machine costs $1000; that will be $1500 landed here. The American maker is not a fool; he knows what it will cost the buyer for his machine. He sees that he may get your order for $1400 and keep out the foreigner. If you like his machine you prefer saving $100. In course of time another machine maker lowers the price to $1200. The people who have been getting $1400 tackle this man and say, "Look here, these machines cannot be landed here under $1500. Let us form a combine and keep up the price." I

PSALM XXXVIII

Written for the Townsman

This is the third of the penitential Psalms. It starts with the outcry of a sin-laden man, and reveals the restlessness of a soul under the sense of guilt, and longing for forgiveness and reconciliation. The intensity of desire for God is shown by his use of three of the five Hebrew names for God which are found in the Old Testament. He begins with Jehovah, the God of the covenant, "merciful and gracious, slow to anger, forgiving iniquities, transgressions and sins." V. 1, "Jehovah, rebuke me not in thy wrath," and after declaring his suffering and contrition, he appeals to Adonai—God as the possessor and ruler of all things. V. 9, "All my desire is before thee, and my groaning is not hid from thee."

After mentioning the treachery of false friends and the taunts of open enemies, he adds, "I was dumb. For in thee, Jehovah, I hope. Thou wilt hear, Adonai, Elohim, my owner, the true God." Elohim is the generic name of God as the divine being, the true God, as distinguished from idols. After further confession and complaint, the Psalm closes, V. 21-23, "Forsake me not, Jehovah. Elohim, be not far from me. Hasten to my help, Adonai, my salvation." In his final appeal he combines the three names, and clings to God with deep contrition and desperate endeavor in all his various relations to the children of men, the grace, the help, the government and might of the Almighty.

These pleadings resemble Job's in their complaints, confessions and confidence in God, and in being prompted by a new and profound discovery of the wickedness of sin. God himself had approved of Job as a man of piety and righteousness, and Job himself had been strenuous in asserting his innocence, against the foolish and unreasonable accusations of his friends, but, underneath all that was laudable in conduct and character, there remained a corruption revealed in the light of the divine glory—"The law of sin in his members," of which Paul speaks in the 7th chapter of Romans—and the patriarch cries out in his dismay, "I had heard of thee by the hearing of the ear. But now my eye seeth thee, wherefore I abhor myself and repent in sackcloth and ashes." Job 42:6.

The Psalmist, as we have seen, opens each of the three parts of the Psalm with an appeal to God. His first plea, 1-8, is grounded upon his guilt and suffering, as in another Psalm: "For thy name's sake pardon mine iniquity, for it is great." The second, 9-14, rests upon the turning over to God the malice of his enemies, and the treachery of his friends; and the third 15-22, lest by his fall the wicked should be encouraged still further to dishonor God. As in many other Psalms, e.g. in the 6th and 35th, we notice here the calm that comes by prayer, in the contrast of feeling between the first and closing verses. There are various profitable lessons to be drawn from the experiences here portrayed; but one of supreme importance will claim all the space allowed, and that is the lack of any such keen and pungent sense of sin as is found so abundant in both the Old and New Testament, in the majority of people, even in Christian people, of the present generation. This is seen in popular indifference to the fact that only a small percentage (not fraction but percentage) of criminals are brought to justice, and that even these are liable to escape punishment by skillful use of some mere legal technicality, and until recently there has been entire immunity for criminals in high places.

merely give a supposed case of what has taken place in not one instance, but in many trades. This combine or trust business has kept competition from reducing prices. If we had free and fair competition it would not matter much how high the duty was. It is true that in England there are also trusts formed to keep up to a uniform price, but nothing to speak of in number and power to what we have here. You can see that the tariff enables the trusts to work freely.

The question as to tariffs increasing wages just amounts to the demand for labor, and unless a manufacturer gets a price to pay a profit on his outlay there will be no demand for labor. Labor is like many other things. Eggs are now fifty cents a dozen. There are few eggs and many buyers.

Russia, a high tariff country with a plethora of workers pays lowest wages; America, with not too many people wanting to work, pays much higher wages.

There is apt, however, to be some false notions about wages paid in this country. One must know more than one town or state to know the facts. I would just ask Senator Lodge if he is aware that in Lawrence and Lowell hundreds of men are working for eight dollars a week, or not even that. Why? Because there are too many applicants for work of that kind.

I think that the good sense of the country will support the insurgents in much-needed reforms. They seem to think that they get clear of a boss when leader is the right name—perhaps. I lived in a country where when the shepherd went before the sheep he cried, "Hoo, Hoo, Hoo, Hoo," and the sheep ran after him. The shepherd's dog, a big short-haired English sheep dog, was behind the sheep, and any straggler got a taste of boss-ship. In like manner, those Republican sheep at Saratoga may have had a leader, also a boss.

The Democrats may have neither leader nor boss in this state, and yet they may get out of the mire and land on a fossil. Who can tell?

IAN McDOUGALL.

"In the corrupt currents of (our laws) Offence's gilded hand has shoved by justice; And oft 'tis seen the wicked prize itself Buys out the law."

And it is only when things have come to such a pass that the public conscience is aroused and the people have begun to call a halt.

Beneath this moral laxity, and in part the cause of it, lies a prevailing unconsciousness of God, and of the sin and shame of leaving out of our reckoning and recognition the Giver of every good and perfect gift; the One in whom we live and move and have our being.

It is not too much to say that probably to very many Christian people such sorrow for personal sin as abounds in the Psalms is unknown, and if expressed by one whose outward life was correct, would be regarded as extravagant, if not fanatical, and that equally extravagant in the opposite direction would seem the expression of such intense desire for the presence and companionship of God as appears, e.g. in the 42nd Psalm: As the hart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God; or, 73:25: Whom have I in heaven but thee, and there is none upon earth that I desire beside thee; or, Phil. 3:8: I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus, my Lord. The two experiences are the opposite faces of the same spiritual condition. The higher ecstasy of joy in God, the deeper the realization of personal unworthiness.

Few men have had such a record of purity from childhood as Jonathan Edwards. His fellowship with God was like that of the psalmists and prophets. He quotes as the expression of his own experience, "My soul breaketh for the longing that it hath. My soul waiteth for the Lord more than they that watch for the morning." But his sense of the hatefulness of sin, and at the same time, of his personal unworthiness, grew with his growth and strengthened with his mental strength. He says in his journal, "I have a vastly deeper sense of my wickedness, and the badness of my heart than I ever had before my conversion. It affects me to think how ignorant I was, when a young Christian, of the bottomless depths of hypocrisy, pride and self-deceit remaining in me. My sinfulness as I am in myself has long appeared to me simply unspeakable."

"I saw," says Luther, "that I needed a perfect righteousness in which to appear before God, and that this could be found only in Christ. But my inward pollution that I felt the guilt of to amazement, that I saw always putting forth itself within me corruption, I said, would as naturally bubble up out of my heart as water from a spring. I could have changed hearts with anyone; I thought no one could equal me in pollution."

Paul was rigidly conscientious from a child. Even in prosecuting, he "verily thought that he ought to do many things contrary to the name of Jesus." He had prided himself upon "his superior excellence in the Jews' religion." But one glimpse of the face of Jesus, one sentence from his glorified lips scattered these dreams of perfection, never to return. He can find no picture horrible enough to set forth the contamination of his indwelling sin. He compares it to a corpse chained to a living man, that living and dead might rot together to corruption. "I find," he says, "that when I would do good, evil is present with me. There are two lives within me, one struggling towards heaven and the other towards earth. But he never forgets that the lower life has been revealed to him by the presence of the heavenly. By the "Christ in him, the hope of glory."

Now these experiences had behind them no trace of vice or wickedness. According to a worldly standard, these three men were flawless. Spiritually they were heroes of the faith. Their minds were of the highest rank. What they said of themselves were words of truth and soberness, and belong to human nature. Spiritual numbness and blindness prevents its recognition in the worldly soul. To the renewed soul this "inbred sin" is found in struggle. "The flesh lusteth against the spirit and the spirit against the flesh."

Our Psalmist declares that his enemies plotted against him because he was good. Yet how intense and humiliating his sense of sin. Paul shows that one may be legally blameless and yet a great sinner before God.

The evil in us hates the presence and growth of grace in the soul, and according to the vigor of the growth will be the intensity of the conflict. It is only "the law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus" that sets us free from the law of sin and death.

The cause of our superficial estimate of sin is not far to seek. For the man of today, the profitable is the only real. Success not character is the goal. The people see in nature not sublimity and beauty—work of an Almighty hand—but a tool for human use. A lovely cascade is for the farmer a splendid place for washing sheep; for a mechanic, is just the spot for a hydraulic ram. Niagara more valuable as a dripping crag, when underground turbines had translated its roar into the rumble of traffic or the whirl of the factory.

The church has caught the spirit of the age. Not the mind of Mary "who sat at Jesus' feet, but of Martha cumbered with serving." There is increasing zeal for the spread of the gospel, especially the gospel of civic purity and social betterment; but somehow there is a lack of the "power of God." No one will come to penitence for sin by mere activity, however praiseworthy. For that, there must be habitual contact with a spirit higher and purer than his own.

Nothing but human loveliness can diffuse a sense of sinfulness among men. The beauty of the Lord our God must be upon us if our work of conviction and conversion is to be established (Ps. 40:17). Only then can the spirit, through us, "convince the world of sin and righteousness and so transform the nation into the kingdom of God."

There is, then, an accumulated interest of years, and hundreds of thousands of people will be pleased to know that at last theatrical managers have awakened to the possibilities of the fun-making qualities of this subject for stage purposes. Very soon now, at the Opera House we shall see "Billy, The Boy Artist," as a full-fledged "comic cut" musical show with all the characters that Ed. Payne has made familiar to New Englanders. In addition to Profs. Wise and Schmart and Billy himself there will be Clarence, Chumpley, Hen, the hired man; Rantington, Leeds, Feint A. Way, Aunt Abby, Maud Goldington, Pansy Blossom, Sadie Suits, Maidie Merry, Mr. Fussy and Mrs. Fussy, and a lot more.

It is promised that "Billy, The Boy Artist" will outshine all the other newspaper cartoon plays for genuine jollity, pretty girls—all of whom will be genuine artists' models, by the way—tuneful music and scenic effects. It will be at the Opera House, November 3, 4, and 5.
